

National General Manager Rail Services

- High quality services organisation targeting the rail sector
- Market entry and business growth focus
- Competitive package negotiated. East Coast location.

With extensive experience across all business categories, Chandler Macleod Group's Workforce Services business engages clients and manages part or all of their workforce requirements including sourcing and maintaining talent pools, recruitment, assessment, induction and training of staff, workforce planning and mobility, rostering and payroll services and OH&S.

Reporting to the Executive General Manager Workforce Services you will bring a strategic mindset and rail sector knowledge. You will audit current capability and then build a market approach which clearly and positively differentiates the business proposition. You will be well resourced to capitalise on opportunities as they are uncovered and will be supported by a substantial organisational network of peers and colleagues. You will push the boundaries and drive the business, but will be team oriented in your approach.

You come from the rail sector with some combination of operations, business services or project management in your background. You clearly understand the sector's dynamics and know how to navigate its political, operational and commercial complexities. You are technically and commercially astute but need not be an engineer or an accountant. You pride yourself on your ability to engage and service line executives and to partner with them in broad people oriented initiatives and projects. This role will suit an individual who has a strong desire to create and take ownership for a business. You are a collaborative, innovative, and outcomes oriented individual with a proven track record of leveraging business performance.
